Curriculum Vitae

MARK BOIVIN is a trial lawyer with over twelve years of legal experience. His practice focuses on advocacy, advice and litigation defense for clients seeking solutions to problems arising from commercial contracts, provision of healthcare, products liability and disputes among businesses, individuals and governmental agencies.

Mark is a former corporate attorney, prosecutor and plaintiff's attorney. Prior to joining McElroy Deutsch, Mark was part of the litigation team at a Rhode Island firm where he concentrated on commercial liability, contracts, land use, maritime, municipal, and renewable energy issues. He also brings real world experience as a retired member of the U.S. Coast Guard and former general counsel to a global environmental service company in the oil and gas industry. As a member of the litigation team he stands ready to provide corporate clients effective representation.

In his spare time, Mark is a volunteer coach for the Rhode Island Special Olympics Snowboard Team and a competitive sailor in the Newport, Rhode Island area.
